Biographical Note

Richard V. Aghababian was born in Boston on July 7, 1948 and grew up in Newton, MA. He graduated from Harvard College with a degree in biochemistry in 1970, and was a member of the first class of the University of Massachusetts Medical School, matriculating in fall of 1970. He did his first clerkship at Saint Vincent's hospital in Worcester, MA in the surgery department, and graduated with the first class from the University of Massachusetts Medical School in 1974. His internship and junior residency in internal medicine was at Mt. Auburn Hospital in Cambridge from 1974 to 1976. From 1976 to 1978 he did a fellowship in emergency medicine, which had recently been established with funding from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, at the University of California San Francisco, a Level I Trauma Center. In 1978 he accepted a position as Chief of the Emergency Department at Burbank

Hospital in Fitchburg, MA and also began teaching at UMass Worcester. While at Burbank he became involved in Emergency Medical Systems (EMS) education by helping to train paramedics and developed Burbank's emergency program into a Level II Trauma Center, the only Level II Trauma Center in central Massachusetts outside of the City of Worcester at the time.

In 1983 he became the Division Director of the Division of Cardiology and Emergency Medicine and began working towards developing the Department of Emergency Medicine at UMass Medical. He was the first Professor of Emergency Medicine at UMass Medical. Along with Dr. H. Brownell Wheeler and Dr. Wayne Silva he developed the Level I Trauma Center at UMass Medical, which included developing the helicopter and ambulance systems for transporting patients. He became the founding chairman of the Department of Emergency Medicine at UMass Memorial Health Care and an associate dean of continuing education at the University of Massachusetts Medical School.

During his time at Burbank he was elected President of the Massachusetts Chapter of the American College of Emergency Physicians. He also served as President of the American College of Emergency Physicians in 1995, and from 2012-2013 he served as President of the Massachusetts Medical Society. He was the editor of two emergency medicine textbooks, Essentials of Emergency Medicine and Emergency Medicine: The Core Curriculum.

Dr. Aghababian volunteered his time and expertise to help develop Emergency Medicine Systems around the world including in Armenia, Guatemala, and Mexico. In the fall of 2001 the Worcester District Medical Society awarded Dr. Aghababian the Dr. A. Jane Fitzpatrick Community Service Award for his national and international work on developing Emergency Medicine Systems. In 2007 he was awarded the Annual Health Care Heroes Award from the Worcester Business Journal.

In 1972 he married Ann E. Bachini. They had a daughter Emily and a son Andrew. Dr. Aghababian died October 1, 2014 at the age of 66.

Scope and Content

This collection contains material relating to Dr. Aghababian's education and career at the University of Massachusetts Medical School from 1970 through 2006. The bulk of the collection is Dr. Aghababian's collection of University of Massachusetts publications. The collection also includes records from his time as a medical student, publications by Dr. Aghababian, correspondence, photographs, and a CD-ROM.

Series and Subseries in the Collection

The collection is arranged in nine series according to topic area or record type, three of which are further arranged into subseries according to topic area.
